Fund performance summary

The S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries Accumulation Index returned -3.7% for the month. The fund outperformed the market and returned -3.0% over the same period.

Market overview

The S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries Index (XSO) was down -3.7% during the month. The Small Industrials decreased by -2.8%, while the Small Resources decreased by -11.3%. The XSO finished the month on a 2yr forecast P/E ratio of 17.5x which is 4.7% above its 5-year average. This valuation is a 21.7% premium to the ASX200.

The best performing sectors for the month were Automotive (+13.1%), Wholesale, Distribution & Manufacturing (+7.1%), Financial Services (+3.7%), and Infrastructure & Utilities (+3.0%). The worst performing sectors were: Metals & Mining - Precious (-14.6%), Metals & Mining - Critical Minerals (-11.4%), Aged Living (-11.0%), and Metals & Mining - Base & Industrial Metals (-8.4%).

The best performing stocks within the XSO Index were Infomedia (IFM +26.7%), G.U.D (GUD +25.3%), Helia (HLI +23.2%), and Pact (PGH +20.9%). Infomedia and G.U.D reported strong first half results, as did Helia who also announced a $100m buyback. Pact reported earnings ahead of broker consensus estimates and suggested it is considering sale of parts of the business.

The worst performing stocks in the XSO index were Temple & Webster (TPW -39.6%), Red 5 (RED -38.1%), St. Barbara (SBM -28.3%), and City Chic (CCX -27.9%). Temple & Webster fell despite some earnings growth due to increasing signs of a weakening consumer market. Red 5 announced a capital raising noting it is facing high operational costs. St. Barbara reported lower gold production vs the prior quarter paired with higher operating costs. City Chic remains weak with market concerns around inventory, weak consumer demand, and the company's financial position.

Market outlook

World markets continue to be concerned about weakening growth and concerns around persisting inflation. This needs to be balanced against the prospect that the rate rise cycle is nearer to the end than the middle. Central banks are in an unenviable position. They need to stamp out a worldwide inflation outbreak while growth is weakening, and geopolitical risk is very high. We continue to monitor the risk of recession closely and now believe that it is far more likely than not in most countries.

The cost of energy has risen significantly over the last 12 months.

The February earnings season ended with a fairly even split of positive and negative results, but highlighted some fairly universal themes. Input costs continue to climb and put pressure on margins with many companies highlighting wage inflation in particular. Some companies are starting to see signs of a shift in consumer behaviour but note that it has not yet been a dramatic shift. Whilst consumer demand has so far been resilient, we are monitoring indicators closely for signs of a more dramatic slowing.

We remain very wary as we believe that general economic conditions continue to deteriorate. We believe that in general investors should avoid companies that have significant debt and may need to use the equity markets to reduce gearing. We also note from the recent resource quarterlies that tight labour conditions are likely to lead to significant cost blowouts and delays in projects currently under construction.
